DANIEL TO HAWATT

DANIEL                      MATTHEW DANIEL
 HAWATT                      MICHAEL HAWATT

EXTRACT

HAWATT:                      – generally I’m busy, but I’m disappointed with the way the Government’s organised this amalgamation without really proper consultation with us.

DANIEL:                      (UNINTELLIGIBLE).

HAWATT:                      Especially (UNINTELLIGIBLE).

DANIEL:                      (UNINTELLIGIBLE)

HAWATT:                      It’s like they treat us like – like lepers, they’ve treated us with contempt –

DANIEL:                      Mm.

HAWATT:                      - and we are a nothing and we don’t exist.

DANIEL:                      Mm.

HAWATT:                      (UNINTELLIGIBLE) and work like fuckin dogs for them to get a new Government and they can’t give us an ounce of respect. (INAUDIBLE)

DANIEL:                      Yeah it’s pretty poor form mate.

HAWATT:                      It’s a joke, it’s an absolute joke.

DANIEL: Yeah it's very poor form.

HAWATT: Yeah.

DANIEL: Yeah they – they only – they – I mean these guys will only respect the (INAUDIBLE) –

HAWATT: (INAUDIBLE)

DANIEL: Yeah well it seems to be. They just seem to – they seem to forget where they come from I don't know sometimes it's very strange.

HAWATT: They – they did – they do. I mean they're talking about oh we listen to the unions and the Labor Party and that's what they want and that's what they (UNINTELLIGIBLE). Fuckin have you listened to us? I mean what I joke.

DANIEL: Yeah I know, I'm – I'm sorry you – I'm sorry you're – you're copping it that way mate it's very – very (UNINTELLIGIBLE) very – very bad.

HAWATT: I mean they don't even realise we have – we have control over – over bloody council in Canterbury which we're in the minority and we still control over it and (UNINTELLIGIBLE) fuckin (UNINTELLIGIBLE).

DANIEL: Mm I know it's just strange isn't it. Oh mate -

HAWATT: What can we do?
